About the Author

Janis Van Keuren has enjoyed twenty-five years of interviewing and penning people's stories. From her work on staff with various companies, Janis' feature articles have appeared in company publications, local newspapers, an airline magazine, and Christian publications.

As a journalist crafting stories in a Christian community setting, Janis interviewed members about their stories of God's work in their lives and how it affected their personal relationship with Him. Loving her work, she also wrote devotionals for Family Life Radio. Recently one of her feature stories appeared in Divine Interventions: Heartwarming Stories of Answered Prayer—a Guideposts compilation.

Overview

In today's anxiety-laden world, women are thirsting for a personal touch from God. In God's Fingerprints on Women's Hearts, thirty short devotional stories from individual women's lives will quench their thirst for a word from God as they witness how He has touched other women's lives. Women are relational, making the unique format of this book's story-based devotionals lead the reader to discover God's touch, whisper, nudge, or direction for each reader's life. The author leads the reader to understand that God offers her the same encounter with His tender heart inclined toward her.
